EDUCATION AT AMERICA'S PORT® REACHES MILESTONE

As World Trade Week kicks off, the Port of Los Angeles announces a new educational milestone that is sure to pay dividends for years to come - more than 35,000 students per year now participate in Port-related education programs. Targeting students of all ages, these programs focus on promoting an understanding of ports, the maritime environment and the industries that facilitate goods movement and global trade, as well as providing resources and experiences that broaden students' view of the Southern California region, international trade and their future career possibilities.
